

THE VICTORY

BY COLONEL DEAN

THE Spirit of Jesus Christ and the spirit of the world are eternally antagonistic; there can be no compromise or quarter. The ultimate of each are in opposition. The one works for life, the other operates for death.

The Spirit of Christ is the ascendant, for ever rising; the spirit of the world is descendant; the one topos in glory, light, and goodness; the other bottomless in shame, darkness, and evil. The line between the two is most distinct and acute.

The Great Master said, "He that is not for Me is against Me." "Ye cannot serve God and manum." The apostle said, "If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." The spirit of the world is enmity to God, and so violent is this separation of the two sides that Crucifixion is employed to indicate it; both sides are crucified.

Hence, the Crucifixion of Jesus Christ was the supreme act of the world by which it was hoped the world would rid itself of the Man and His Spirit. It was an act of excommunication of the Son of God from their association.

"The world is crucified unto Me, and I unto the world."—Galatians 6:14.

This act was an effect of the felt separation between Him and the world, and was instigated by the god of this world, after he had failed in his effort to get Jesus to capitulate to his temptations in the wilderness. Jesus Christ crucified the world to Himself before the world crucified Him.

He crucified the world of sensuous gratification when He refused to unlawfully make bread out of stones. He crucified the world of popularity when He declined to jump from the pinnacle, and when He refused to be made a king. He crucified the world when He turned down the offer of the whole world which was offered to Him for one act of homage to His great ruler.

He despised the whole thing, and with majestic contempt left all its offers on a cross of rejection, and went on his way knowing His path would lead on to Calvary as a result of His separateness and rejection of the offers made to Him.

What was this but Holiness in its spotless robe walking unstained through a realm of bitterness and filth—light marching through a sphere of black darkness, yet itself undimmed; and as He was, so are His followers to be.

He was a Victor; He never failed; He struck His foes deadly blows at every effort. The world's appeal in every attempt failed to touch Him—the eye, the ear, the taste, "the feelings," the mind—were all appealed to by enemies, visible and invisible; He was tempted by hunger; He was presented with the offer of the whole world, but they all failed, and, emerging every time from His conflict. He had a victory. Hallelujah! But at what a cost!

Oh, this killing, this public killing, the exposure, the reproach, the physical and mental anguish, this separation! We are to follow Him. Paul said he so followed Christ. He said, "I am crucified unto the world, the world is crucified unto me." Is it not just here the professor fails? In many cases his Christianity becomes a theory, and a sentiment, rather than an experience. Is not the Cross evaded in fact?

Where is the suffering now, the sacrifice now? Is not Socialism in a most subtle form injecting itself into Christianity, and humanitarianism taking the place of vital Godliness? Has now that which was first secondhand? The hell of the Cross evaded? Is the Church acute now, or is it obliterated? Where is the line now? In what are we obviously separate?

Is it true the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world?

only getting two pounds per week, yet I am one of the happiest of men alive, with a good wife, three children, and a happy home."—Social Gazette.

Robertson and Bandsman A. H. Smith, of Regina, were married on Friday, June 2nd, at the home of the bridegroom, by Adjutant Hoddinott. There were many of the Soldiers present, and after the ceremony they all sat down to a wedding supper. Our sincere hope and wish is that Bandsman and Mrs. Smith will be both greatly blessed, and that they will both prove to be a blessing in the Corps.—Correspondent.

Band Notes

On Victoria Day we were favoured at Ridgeway by a visit from the St. Thomas Band and Adjutant and Mrs. Trickey. This was a time of both pleasure and blessing. The musical meetings were held in the Town Hall, Mayor Henry acting as Chairman. Everything went lovely. Duets by Adjutant and Mrs. Trickey and solos by others were very pleasing; another item of interest was the songs rendered by Sergeant-Major Voisey, of the St. Thomas Corps, in the various Indian languages. The meals were served in the Army Hall, much credit being due to Sergeant-Major Mrs. Poag and Sister Mrs. Down, for their preparation, etc. Everyone thoroughly enjoyed the day, and the weather was all that could be desired. We heartily invite the Band to pay us another visit when again possible. We have lately welcomed to the Corps Lieutenant Scott from the Training College, to assist Captain Doberty.—E. F.

THE WEEK'S BEST STORY

SELECTED FROM THE ARMY'S PRESS

A FREEMAN FREED

Fallen from high estate, a failure in business and friendless, he came to the Army and found God.

"CAN I see the head of The Salvation Army?" inquired a rattled, almost shamed, and dirty individual in refined accents at the Whitechapel Headquarters of The Salvation Army (London). He was directed, instead, to the City Colony Governor.

"Upstairs. First door on the landing. God bless you!" The latter one stepped gingerly up the white, scrubbed stairs, his remnants of boots leaving black marks on them.

"Certainly, you can see the Head of the City Colony here. Come in and wait a little. He's busy," said an Officer, who had his hands full of papers and had just risen from a typewriting machine.

Presently a bell sounded, the Officer disappeared into an inner room, and returned to beckon the stranger through the door. A clean man sat at a desk in the plain, clean little apartment.

"God bless you. What can I do for you?" said the Officer. "Everything you choose to tell will be held as absolutely confidential."

"No need for that," returned the listener promptly. "All the world can see what is the matter with me." "Well, there's the Perfect Remedy for you—Salvation through Christ. He will make a new man of you if you are willing to let Him."

"Willing?" said the other with bitterness. "If I could only believe it!"

"You can. What is the cause? Drink?" "Right, first guess. Ask again, please, it makes things easier."

There was no effrontery in the latter one's look or manner, but a steady, sad hopelessness and courtesy in the tone of the short sentences. "Gentleman?"

"I used to be sir. Income in the thousands. Friends of the City of London. Crowds of friends. Influential position. Then I failed in business. Had been drinking moderately and then took to drinking in excess. I've tried twice to commit suicide and been rescued—for I'm indicated deservingly his appearance.

Happiness a Mockery

"No! God has preserved you for Himself, a good career, and happiness. I've tried twice to commit suicide and been rescued—for I'm indicated deservingly his appearance."

"Sir, I'm in despair. To speak of happiness to me is mockery, though you do not intend it. Drink is all I live for at present, and at the moment I am penniless, and drink beyond me. In all the world I have no friend, having outworn the patience of the most patient. I come to see if The Salvation Army will give me work or a meal."

"Both, Brother," the Salvationist put his hand on the ragged, thin shoulder—"make your peace with God before you start, and the start is sure to end in success."

"God help me! Pray for me, I can't for myself," said the man, and knelt on the floor by his chair. Sobs began to shake him while the Salvationist, his arm around his shoulders, knelt beside him and prayed for his spiritual and bodily regeneration.

Presently he prayed for himself in between tears and pauses. Later still he said suddenly: "I believe Christ has saved me. It seems so," and very fervently began to pour out thanks to God.

"The Way will be hardest at first, but He treads it with you now and will never leave of forsake you," were the parting words when, after a meal of warm, good food, the visitor, one of the many thousands who have stepped into Whitechapel Road Headquarters to find hope, help, and blessing, went carefully down the stairs to one of The Army Homes.

All this happened six years ago. The rattled one is well clothed today. The other day he said: "I am

Lessons From the Life of Lord Kitchener

BY THE EDITOR

THE great man, whose career has closed in the dramatic manner now familiar to every one, rose from an obscure subaltern to the supreme head of the greatest British army since the days of Wellington, and the Empire's great organizer of victory. He closed his career with a record of triumphs as a soldier, pro-consul, and war minister that places him in the front rank of all great Englishmen that have ever lived.

Paul did not use a mere figure of speech when he exhorted Timothy to "endure hardness as a good soldier of Christ," or to "love a good warfare." He knew very well that to successfully combat the great adversary of one's own soul, or to extend the Kingdom of Christ, we should have to engage in war and in a spiritual sense exercise all the powers necessary to the successful soldier whose weapons are carnal.

Lord Kitchener, then, is the supreme type of the successful fighting man. Let us look at the characteristics which enabled him to conquer in the Sudan, in South Africa, and lastly to raise a British army of five million men, for depend upon it, whether we be simple Salvation Soldiers, Local Officers, or Field and Staff Officers, a spiritual application of Kitchener's mental and physical characteristics will not fail to make us better and more successful Soldiers of Christ.

An Out-and-Out-Order

To begin with, he was an out-and-out soldier. Said one of his intimates: "He served no other god but the god of battles, and he spared no time, nor trouble, to make himself an efficient soldier." How thoroughly he carried this out may be gathered from the following paragraph:

"Lord Kitchener was a bachelor, and did not believe in the domestic joys for the soldier. All his officers whom he commanded the army in Egypt had to be bachelors. He did not want to have men around him sighing for home and wife and children. Those things were not for a soldier in Kitchener's understanding of the life."

This practice is very much in accord with the precepts of Saint Paul, who said: "No man that warreth entangleth himself with the affairs of this life that he may please him who hath chosen him to be a soldier."

The Soldier of Christ who is out for spiritual victory in his or her own soul, and who desires to win others for God, cannot afford to be entangled unduly with the affairs of this life, and there is no doubt that many a courageous Soldier of Jesus has had his or her usefulness crippled through marriages that have not been calculated to promote personal holiness or usefulness. And here, in consequence, not only ceased to fight, but have been slain by the adversary of souls. Young Soldiers of Jesus cannot be too careful in this respect, and should their companions be likely to interfere with their devotion to labour in the spiritual war, the great Captain of their Salvation will abundantly compensate them for their self-sacrificing singleness of life.

The singleness of eye and self-abnegation of life manifested by Lord Kitchener in his soldiership for his Sovereign may very profitably be studied and emulated by those who desire to become victors in the service of the King of kings.

A Great Worker

Lord Kitchener was a tireless worker in season and out of season. He was intent on the duties of his appointment.

"His capacity for work was amazing, and he had no patience with a man less energetic than himself. It was characteristic of him that his first question when he entered the War Office as Secretary for War was: 'Is there a bed in the building?' 'No, sir,' replied an official. 'Then get one,' said Lord Kitchener. Then the officials knew that day or night would find Lord Kitchener at his post."

"During the South African war he seldom had more than three or four hours' sleep a day, rising regularly at four or five o'clock in the morning, and working hard until midnight. Officers knew that Kitchener always meant business. He had no use for regimental ornaments; practical soldiers were what he wanted."

Even so those who would accomplish much for the Kingdom of God must be ever at their posts. Those who are in labours more abundant will achieve abundant accomplishments.

The Salvationists who are always speaking to men and women about their souls in workshop, home, or on the street will, in the natural order of things, be much more successful in winning souls than those who seldom or never speak a word.

Those who attend our services, and deal personally with those in the prayer meetings are certain to capture more souls for God than those who do nothing. Kitchener became the idol of the British Empire because of his achievements which were the results of his devotion and hard work.

But not only did he work for others, he worked at himself. While other young officers were engaged in legitimate pleasures he was studying the art of war in histories and by textbook; and, in Egypt, where he has established a reputation for war and statescraft more enduring than the pyramids, he worked incessantly at acquiring a knowledge of the habits and languages of the Egyptian people. He thought nothing of disguising himself as an Arab and living among the sons of the desert for months at a time and counting not his life dear unto him in order to acquire the language and a knowledge of the habits of the naives and the Madhi's movements and conspiracies."

"For two years Lord Kitchener practically lived among the Arabs, carrying his life in his hands, never knowing when it might be brought face to face with a violent death, and all the while communicating to the heads of the Egyptian Intelligence Department information of the utmost importance."

"Kitchener's cleverness in disguising himself, coupled with a knowledge of Arabic, which he had picked up in his wanderings in Syria, made him invaluable to the authorities. He was appointed chief of the Secret Service, and the following incident, the truth of which is vouched for by one of Lord Kitchener's relatives, strikingly illustrates his personal courage and cleverness."

"Two Arab spies had been caught, but they feigned deafness, and Kitchener could get nothing from them. They were detained in a tent. In half an hour another spy was caught and handed into the tent with the other two. They were left for an hour, talking briskly all the time, and then the door was thrown open and a third spy demanded to be taken to headquarters. It was Kitchener himself, who had, of course, found out all he wanted to know."

The Salvation Soldier or Officer who would attain spiritual distinction will have to go into secret places with the Most High and learn the nature and the mind of God. In private prayer, the study of God's Word, and in meditation, the follower of the bleeding Lamb will get to know God. And they who "know God shall do exploits."

Knowledge of God's will and courage to do it can only come through the same paths of study of unselfishness and readiness to live or die for the success of a cause that Kitchener practised. To go in to a spiritual desert with God is an experience that would do us all good.

Accomplishing the Impossible

That Faith laughs at impossibilities, and cries "It shall be done!" is a sentiment very familiar to Salvationists. It is not quite possible to tell on what rock Kitchener placed his confidence, but the fact remains that he had a great power for accomplishing the hitherto considered impossible.

"Everybody knew that a railway from Hafia across the desert to Abu Hamed was an impossibility—until the Sirdar turned it into a fact. Everybody told him that he would never get the gumbos over the Fourth Cataract; a general who had been there in the Wolsey days delivered a lecture demonstrating the impossibility of the scheme. A day or two after the Sirdar sent the boats over. To be sure, one turned turtle in the attempt, and a naval Lieutenant was fished out three-quarters drowned, and two Egyptians had to be cut out through the bottom of the boat. Yet here were three vessels steaming up and down unperturbed, right under Mahmud's nose. The value of their services it would be quite impossible to exaggerate; they were worth all the rest of the Intelligence Department put together."

In just the same way the Salvation Army Officer or Soldier must go after the things of God and those things that pertain to His Kingdom, and must never be thwarted or turned aside by difficulties.

Perhaps there is no class of work that is attended at times with great tempt, and a naval Lieutenant was fished out three-quarters drowned, and two Egyptians had to be cut out through the bottom of the boat. Yet here were three vessels steaming up and down unperturbed, right under Mahmud's nose. The value of their services it would be quite impossible to exaggerate; they were worth all the rest of the Intelligence Department put together."

His Motto—"Thorough" The motto adopted by the late Earl Kitchener in his armorial bearings was "Thorough." And if he had been a Salvation Army Officer, it is impossible to conceive him being anything else but a "thorough" Salvationist, and one whose Corps would be thorough yorized for victory in every part.

The Founder of The Salvation Army was distinguished as an organizer, and the biographers of Lord Kitchener claim that the secret of his successes lay in his power for organization. Do Salvation Army Officers cultivate sufficiently this great factor in success? Can we not learn a lesson from him in this respect? Organization in the average man is the getting of all men to work together in unison for the accomplishment of any purpose.

We might each of us with adopt Kitchener's motto for our own, and be thorough in our relations with God, in our relations with our comrades, and in coming with our work. Kitchener's a to the British soldiers going to France was: "Fear God and honour the King." To all Salvationists we say: "Fear God and honour The Salvation Army."

Comments and Comparisons in Connection with Western S.-D. Advance

THE information regarding the progress of the Self-Denial in the British Columbia Division is, at the moment of going to press, very brief. We have received word, however, from Brigadier McLean, the Divisional Commander, to the effect that his target is assured.

One of two Corps have not finished, but I am in a position to say the Divisional target for British Columbia will be reached. This has meant a tremendous fight this year, and the Officers have certainly denied themselves in a very practical way. A full report will be sent in to Territorial Headquarters at the earliest.

Thus writes the energetic Divisional Commander away on the Pacific Coast.

The following wire has been received by Divisional Headquarters from Ensign Merritt, of Victoria, B. C.: "Had enthusiastic ingathering meeting on Thursday evening. Target smashed raised total of $167 for Self-Denial Effort. Comrades of Corps and everyone delighted with total. Yours for victory."—James Merritt.

Nelson, Fernie, Prince Rupert, and Vancouver have sent in their target in full.

Last year's target for the British Columbia Division was $3,827.8. It was set by the Commissioner at an even $3,800 for 1916. The Division has certainly achieved a great victory by securing this amount, especially as financial conditions in that Province have not been any too bright during the past year. We shall look for further particulars with interest.

We have looked forward with considerable interest to the Self-Denial results of the Saskatchewan Division, because of the fact it is the first Self-Denial Effort undertaken by the youngest Division in Canada West, and also account of it being the first effort Major Combs has been responsible for, as a Divisional Commander.

We rejoice in the fact that the Division has more than "smashed" its target, which was fixed at $2,400. Last year (in proportion to the amount raised by the Corps separated from the North-West Division) it amounted to $1,715. Thus the increase on this year's target is $200, and the increase on the amount raised last year $885. Well done, Saskatchewan!

Three of the chief Corps of the Division—Regina, Moose Jaw, and Saskatoon—were given targets of $500. Needless to say, there has been considerable competition between them as to which would secure the largest amount. We understand Staff-Captain Goodwin, of Moose Jaw, is the successful competitor.

We regret further particulars relating to the special achievement of certain Corps and the amounts raised by different branches of the Corps are not to hand, but we are confident the collective and individual efforts of all who have taken part has been equal to that put forth by any Division in the Territory.

The prospect for a splendid Self-Denial effort for the Alberta Division is very bright indeed. We have every reason to take it for granted that the Divisional Commander, Major Hay, has long ere this secured his target.

We are not in a position to state who is the Champion Officer-Collector in the Division, nor are we able to give details of what the various Corps, or any other branch of the Division, have raised. It will be noted that a number of Corps are entitled to be B. E. medalists, Camrose, Coleman, McLeod, and Red Deer. The last-mentioned Corps secured the splendid increase of $106.30 over last year's amount. Well done, Red Deer!

The Major informs us he has been greatly encouraged, as he has gone around his Division, to note the splendid spirit in which every Officer, Soldier, and friend has entered into the Effort.

The Self-Denial Ingathering of the Manitoba Division was an occasion of praise and thanksgiving to God for the splendid victory achieved. Brigadier Taylor, the Divisional Commander, arranged for a day's Councils with his Officers on Tuesday, June 6th, previous to the Public Ingathering which took place at night. All the Officers were in attendance, with the exception of the wives of three, who, we regret to learn, were unable to be present on account of ill-health.

The Councils were principally of a devotional character. In the morning session a number of Officers were given the opportunity to speak, and each gave expression of their appreciation of the arrangements made for their meeting together in the evening. All the Officers were very encouraging for them to do so, after their strenuous work of the last few weeks.

Major Combs, the Saskatchewan Divisional Commander, who was present, made reference to previous efforts, and told how God had always come to him and in the past.

At the conclusion of the Major's remarks, Brigadier Taylor, in a short address, said he rejoiced in the fact that the success of the effort had not been obtained by a certain number of Corps doing extra brilliant, but that every Corps had "put its shoulder to the wheel," with the result, each had smashed their particular target. Another thing that had greatly encouraged him was "The spirit in which the effort had been taken up by the Officers and Soldiers," and his heart was full of gratitude to all who had taken part.

The Officers were delighted to learn that the Commissioner had gladly accepted the invitation extended to him to take tea with them at the conclusion of the afternoon session.

Commissioner Meets Officers

About fifty Staff and Field Officers took their seats at the prepared tables, and partook of the good things kindly prepared for them by Captain and Mrs. Beckett and the company of the Winnipeg II Corps. The bright faces of those present beamed with cheerful smiles as they conversed one with another. It was indeed a happy gathering.

Brigadier Taylor said he felt sure he expressed the sentiments of his Officers when he said they were pleased to have the Commissioner and the Territorial Secretary with them. Lieut.-Colonel Turner said he wished to congratulate the Division on what it had achieved and for the way each and every one had "done their bit."

The Commissioner, in a few words, said he wished to extend his hearty thanks to the Territorial Secretary and the Officers of the Manitoba Division, for the way they had rallied to his assistance in connection with this year's Self-Denial Effort. As closing, he informed the gathering he had become very much alarmed of late to find that a number of professional Ministers of the Gospel were preaching that if a man laid down his life for his country this sacrifice would secure him an abundant entrance into the Kingdom of Heaven. It was very important that The Salvation Army impressed upon the people the error of teaching like this, and how absolutely necessary it was for them to repent of and forsake their sins, and be really converted in order to be saved from the wrath to come. Major Dobney, at the Brigadier's request, closed the proceedings with prayer.

The Public Ingathering

The Winnipeg I, Citadel was crowded at night for the final meeting, and those present looked forward with interest to the announcing of the Self-Denial results of the different Corps in the Division.

The St. James', Winnipeg II, the Citadel Young People's Bands and the Swedish Singing Bands supplied the instrumental music and the Sunbeam Choir and Young People's Songsters, the vocal music. Mention should be made of the sweet solo of Miss Margery Grey, a tiny Junior of the Elmwood Corps. She sang one of the songs rendered by the Dominion at the last International Congress. Illustrated views showing the children of the Criminal Tribes of India were depicted on the canvas, while the Junior referred to sang, "Ensign Quik, of Port Arthur, and Mrs. Captain Allan, of Portage la Prairie, were called on to speak. Each expressed their gratefulness to God for the success He had given them.

Brigadier Taylor then read a letter he had received from the Commissioner, in which he had been asked to convey to all concerned the Commissioner's "heartfelt appreciation" and his hearty congratulations for the splendid success of the effort. At a given signal the lights in the Hall were extinguished, and amid much applause, the various results were shown upon the canvas.

The following are some interesting features of the effort—

Winnipeg I, District was considerably curtailed, and, despite this, the Corps raised a considerable amount over their target.

Brother Shepherd, of Port Arthur, who, previous to his conversion, which took place a little over a year ago, was a confirmed drunkard, personally collected $106.

Winnipeg VII, the "baby" Corps which has a very small number of Soldiers, but each did their part—collecting $25, and Sergeant Douglas $23.

Bandman Eddie Taylor, a Winnipeg I Soldier, who, for some considerable time, been in the trenches with the 28th Battalion, collected from his friends and comrades a considerable sum, and sent it to Adjutant Howell to help him with his target.

Adjutant and Mrs. Carter and the Sergeant of the Dominion collected $105.25. Miss Kelly, the Assistant Matron, raised $50 of this amount.

Adjutant Andrews and her Staff at the Kildonan Home sent in $61. Both the Staff and the inmates of the Home made personal sacrifice to obtain this sum.

The Officers attached to the various Staffs of the different Men's and Women's Social Institutions in the city rallied to the assistance of their respective Corps Officers, and were uniformly responsible for the securing of a substantial amount.

COMFORTING TRUTHS FOR THE BEREAVED

By Mrs. Blanche Johnston

Life changes all our thoughts of

At first we think of streets of gold,

Of gates of pearl and dazzling light,

Of shining wings and robes of white,

And things all strange to mortal sight.

But in the afterword of years

It is a more familiar place,

A home untried by sighs or tears,

Where waiteth many a well-known face.

With passing months it comes more near,

It grows more real day by day—

Not strange or cold, but very dear—

The glad Homeland, not far away,

Where none are sick, or poor, or lone—

The place where we shall find our own—

And as we think of all we knew

Who there have met to part no more,

Our longing hearts desire home too,

With all the strife and struggle o'er.

—Browning.

Confidence in a future life seems innate in the human breast; the instinct of immortality is imperishable. "The desire for the infinite proves infinity," says the great

French author, Victor Hugo. Few, indeed, have been the people who have not imagined that there remains for holy souls beyond the grave some eternal abode of bliss.

The Greeks had their Elysium, or

Islands of the Blessed, a place or condition of supreme delight; the Scandian dreamed of his green paradise hereafter, and, further down the ages, our own religion deals tribes had their happy hunting ground. The Christian turns with eagerness to where, in the Apocalyse, John's glorious prophetic vision, the curtain is drawn aside, and we are allowed to see many beautiful glimpses of that city "whose Builder and Maker is God." The revelation which is allowed us cannot fail to kindle a desire in every heart to have some day, "when all life's lessons have been learned," a share in the light and splendor of that glorious home.

Our Lord Jesus, in the last sacred talk with His own disciples, who were grouped about Him, emphasized its reality and lovingly swept away any misgivings or uncertainties of the future life. "I go to prepare a place for you," He said, "that where

I am there ye may be also."

This Heaven is not merely a state or condition, but a Place. A place to our human imagination conveys the idea of something tangible; some-

WHERE COLONIALS RECUPERATE

Their Colonies Describe The Salvation Army's Visitation at Good Angels

"COME and sit down for a while and talk to me," the speaker was in the light blue clothing of a hospital soldier; as he drew a comfortable armchair to the bedside he impeded pain-

Quite alone, save for the visitor who had just entered, he had been envying his ward mates, now convalescent, who were taking advantage of that very bright and sunny afternoon, and walking in the beautiful grounds surrounding the handsome mansion now used for the purpose of a military hospital. His speech lay-trayed him as a Colonial, and his well-developed figure and bronzed face told of a life spent in the open air.

"I'm afraid you'd make me too comfortable, and I should not get around to see all the other boys," said the visitor with a smile, as from an open bag in her hand she selected packets of chocolate and other goodies to suit the tastes of the men, and proceeded to place them on the coverlets of the respective beds as a surprise for when "the boys" returned.

Turning to the wounded hero, and noting the hungry expression in his eyes, the Salvation Army Officer quickly determined to spare at least a few moments of her busy afternoon to cheer this lonely lad whose parents, thousands of miles away, were unable to visit him; besides, she herself is a mother, with three lads serving King and country, and naturally her heart goes out to all the "boys" as she fondly terms them.

In another moment she was occupying the chair he had proffered, listening to eager stories about the Colonial's home and parents, of his desires for the future, and of his discouragements, while, in turn, she sympathized, advised, and cheered, not forgetting to remind him of some serious things of life. But the moments were precious; in the couple of hours at her disposal there was much to be done, and reluctantly, she had to take her leave.

"You didn't come to see us last week," exclaimed the occupant of the bed, "and now you're here." "We are compelled to leave one ward each week," explained the Salvationist. "Last week it was the turn of No. 10."

Here again, each man, was visited, papers and sweetmeats were distributed, and the absent ones were informed of the news. The Salvationists were well received by all. "I've got a photograph I'd like to show you—this is my wife and these are my children," or "I've got a good book of views—my home is here at A— and it's the most beautiful city in New Zealand." And in a moment, with faces aglow, they talked about home and friends' thousands of miles away. One lad had met The Salvation

Soon, he commenced to chat cheerfully about the time when he should be fully recovered. He had been on his back for months—decided for the first couple of months he had felt that he merely lived; his head; his hearing was affected, his eyesight dim, and his body paralyzed.

"I did not give up hope for more than two days and then," he said, "I do not think I entirely gave up hope. But now every day sees steady improvement."

The Salvation Army visitors are well known, and their visits appreciated. Nurses, orderlies, and even the colonel in charge, the place give them a welcome. On a recent visit the colonel met The Salvation Army Officers while on their rounds. The Officers were engaged in distributing chocolate, etc., when the colonel came upon them. "I've often wondered who were the good angels who looked after the things—now I've caught you at it! Come as often as you can. I know the work of The Salvation Army and appreciate it."

A GOOD VICTORY

Specials Attract Large Crowds

Our Self-Denial Effort at Inverness was a success. We increased on last year's target, raising $130. The Soldiers of the Corps took a great interest in the effort, and they worked hard to make a success. We had to postpone our Junior effort for two weeks on account of diphtheria and measles breaking out in the town; all plans of worship being closed. But we got there all right.

On Sunday, June 4th, we had the joy of seeing two sons kneeling at the Cross for Salvation. A mother and her daughter. On Wednesday, June 7th, we had with us Ensign Gifford, of New Glasgow, and Captain J. Jones, of Westville. The Ensign attracted a good crowd around the open-air by his speaking and correct playing. At the inside meeting the Ensign took to his subject, "Will God Send People to Hell." Although we saw no visible results, much conviction prevailed.

DIVISIONAL COMMANDER

Conducts Special Meetings on the Sunday.

We are glad to report victory and good times at Parry Sound. We smashed our target of $130. Much credit is due to our Soldiers especially the sisters, who went with vigour and determination to the aid of Captain Johnson and Lieutenant Grell.

In connection with the Self-Denial Effort we crossed the river and visited the people of Depot Harbour. They were glad to see The Army, and enjoyed the open-air meeting which we held while there.

On June 1st we were favoured with the visit of Brigadier and Mrs. Adby. We appreciated their singing and were much blessed by the helpful words they were given. One soldier surrendered to God. Also on Sunday night another was converted.

Special evangelistic meetings are in progress under the leadership of Evangelist Sharp, who very kindly invited The Army to take charge of the service. On his return from the North, Brigadier Adby was able to accept this invitation, and we spent a very profitable evening in the large tent.—J. G.

The Chief Secretary

AT LISGAR STREET, ASSISTED BY THE STAFF SONGSTERS

Large Crowds—Ten Surrenders

Large crowds attended the services at Lisgar Street on Sunday, June 11th, when the Chief Secretary and Mrs. Gaskin, assisted by the Staff Songsters and Brigadier and Mrs. Adby, piloted the day's proceedings.

Colonel Gaskin, in the Holmes meeting, gave many reasons why people should go up to the House of the Lord, and the engagement of these causes had an impressive effect on the minds of all present. Six comrades voluntarily made a complete surrender. It was a soul-stirring time. The Staff Songsters aided with their singing of "The Lord is My Shepherd," which piece has become a general favourite.

The Citadel was well filled for the Musical Festival at 3 p.m., and the efforts of the Staff Songsters, Alce Choir, and Orchestra were productive of much appreciation. Lisgar Street Songsters sang very acceptably under the leadership of Leader Snell. Colonel Gaskin, who ably presided, kept the meeting full of interest, in addition to making an appeal on behalf of the soldiers in khaki.

At night the Hall was packed, and a spirit of expectancy prevailed. Carstairs Map and they sang a duet, "Thou Art Calling Me," with much sweetness; also the Male Choir, Staff Songsters, and Lisgar Street Brigade helped out with their singing to bring thoughts into the right channel.

Colonel Gaskin's address was a masterly exposition of the Saviour's ability to comfort, direct, sustain, and save; the result of the appeal will only be revealed on the Judgment morning. Brigadier Adby called for surrenders, and four yielded. A touching scene was witnessed when a Bandman in khaki led a comrade in the ranks back to God.

Captain and Mrs. Leech, with several comrades, expressed their appreciation of the blessing received during the day, as well as recording their personal arduous work. The Chief Secretary and Mrs. Gaskin. One of the number who testified, remembered the Colonel's advice many years ago in the Old Land, and rejoices much through carrying out the same.

The singing of "You can tell out the sweet story," but as a duet by Colonel Gaskin and Captain Dray, and then by the Staff Songsters, elicited a very enthusiastic day's meetings, at well as bringing encouragement to the saints of God, and enlightenment and conviction to those who are still outside the fold.

Many Officers were present during the day, including Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. Smeaton, Lieut.-Col. Hargrave, Mrs. Lieut.-Col. Bond, and Brigadier and Mrs. Beldridge.

A SUCCESSFUL EFFORT

Juniors and Their Workers Did Well.

The total amount raised by the Wingham Corps for Self-Denial was $175. Young People's Sergeant Major Lockman collected $23.50, an increase of $15 on last year; also Sergeant Major Stone raised $15. Both these comrades are R. E.'s.

Our Young People raised the amount of $60, an increase on last year of $49. We rejoice together over the victory accomplished, and give the glory to God.

Letters From The Front

to delighted to see me. I have also undertaken to write home for a number of the men in hospital, and they are so grateful for this favour. Already I have received a number of letters from the friends thanking me for writing.

I am finding the work very interesting indeed. The great difficulty is now unable to do as much as I would like to. I am kind reader of "The Cry" is blessed with a little cash that could be spared to help me secure a small car, it would be much appreciated.

The Director of Chaplain Service has very kindly granted permission for me to visit the other bases and look up my men in the camps and hospitals. This greatly increases the scope of my work, and I hope I will be able to secure the means of moving about.

I am receiving some very encouraging letters from our soldiers at the front, who are boldly taking their stand and trying to lead their comrades to the light. I am enclosing one from Staff-Sergeant Bowen, as I thought it would interest the readers of "The Cry." He has given me permission to send it on. I am pleased to say I was able to send this comrade the mandolin, and I write me that it has come to hand safely, and has been of great service to him with his meetings.

A STAFF-SERGEANT'S EXPERIENCES

What the Sight of a Red Jersey Means.

The letter referred to above reads as follows:

Just a few lines to let you know that I am getting along all right over here in this land of rain and mud. I am sure my arrival I have had varied experiences some of which I want to forget all about. Our journey by road from the base to which we went on landing was one I shall not forget in a hurry. We started off one morning with our horses and wagons, and after four days on the road we arrived at our brigade headquarters. The weather had been wretched; our horses were green, and what with one thing and another, we had a pretty rough time.

For about six weeks we had snow and rain in abundance, and our poor horses had an awful time in the mud. We were in mud up to our knees all day long, and our wagons on transport duty had some awful times. I am indeed glad to say that the weather is beginning to improve and we shall all be glad when the fine weather eventually comes along.

I am pleased to say that through all God has given me grace to get through cheerfully, and to make the most of the many opportunities of witnessing for my Redeemer. I have only been in one Army Unit over here, but I had a nice time at that occasion. I met good wonderful what the sight of The Army jersey worn by a Soldier has on any Salvation Army workers one comes across. A "God bless you"; a hearty handshake, and then, of course, a chance to relate our experiences to one another.

I have had some good meetings amongst the boys, and it is very encouraging to see the interest they take in the old, old story of the Cross. When the men who I am now with knew I was a Salvationist, they at once expected me to hold some meetings amongst them. God gave me grace to go ahead, and it would make your heart glad to hear them singing away with all their might; the only music being the roar and roll of the guns.

Over here men seem to realize their need of Christ, and are only too glad to gather together to worship Him. I have had meetings in various places, in barns, stables, huts, hirones, any place at all for me to visit the other bases and look up my men in the camps and hospitals. This greatly increases the scope of my work, and I hope I will be able to secure the means of moving about.

I am the only man in the company who takes an open stand for Christ, but I find it very easy to let go and get amongst the men. I have Christ with all His power at my side and I feel it a great privilege to be able to do something over here for God and The Army.

I wrote to Adjutant Edwards, asking him if it was possible for him to send me over a mandolin to help me out in the meetings. That was a month ago. I wonder if you would see if anything could be done. Where I am now is right away from any town, so that I can't get in to buy one, else I would not bother you.

I am on a part of the line well known to Canadians, but the censor says we must not tell where we are. I trust that you are well and having God's abundant blessing on your work in Shorncliffe and district. Remember me to Captain Steele and Adjutant Robinson.

CANADA IN ENGLAND

Touching Letter from a Bandman

Comrade H. Fry, of the 40th Reserve Battalion Band at Shorncliffe, sends us the following interesting letter, which certainly speaks well for the fine spirit manifested by British Salvationists, and shows that our own boys are keeping the old flag flying:

To us in England it is very interesting to read in "The War Cry" of The Salvation Army in Canada East and Canada West, so I thought perhaps it would be of interest to many Salvationists to know something of what is going on in "Canada in England"—the district around here might well be called by that name.

The English people greatly appreciate the action of Canadians coming to England in her hour of need, and I also think that hundreds of Salvationists in Canada owe a great big "Thank you" to the comrades of the local Corps, who are really doing wonderful things to help their boys to keep good. At the various Corps around here The Salvation Army comrades always welcome The Salvation Army military comrades, not only to the meetings, but often to their homes.

When military duties are over, and most soldiers have the evenings and Saturday and Sunday afternoons to themselves, it is a beautiful privilege to be able to go to the town and have the choice of one or two homes to which you can go at any time.

A soldier often hears many things that are by no means elevating when he is on duty, but when the snuff takes are being told around the stores in winter, and camps in summer, it is better for the Salvationist to be off to town and get to the meetings to help his brothers and get a blessing oneself.

Secrets of Canadians have been converted here, and scores of pacifists have been brought to God, and scores have been helped to keep straight by testifying and playing in the Band, just the same as if we were at home. It is a true spirit of comradeship, which I believe there is more of in The Salvation Army than in any other organization. It is very fresh and new, and wonderful is the way in which the local comrades and the Canadian comrades are able to get on so well.

It is a very common thing for men to get up from the Penitential Form and confess the backslidings, and say that as they expect to see their comrades in the front, they thought they could not go without getting converted. Who can estimate the value of this work? I am sure many of our boys are being saved back from France, telling how God has kept them and helped them to take their stand. Him, and many, no doubt, will never come back, but they were able to meet their God.

Ought not this to be a clear and shining example to all our boys who are concerned about their boys' spiritual welfare? I pray and their love to you, and all the Canadian Salvationists. Yours sincerely, H. Fry.

THE BAND WINS

The Boat Race—For Comrades Enrolled

The Soldiers of Lisgar Street, who were in connection with the Self-Denial Effort, a Sale of Work was held, and $34 was raised. A great excitement was caused by a boat race, which was held throughout the effort. Each branch of the Corps had a boat on the plan, and the result was a very interesting and a great victory.

On Sunday, June 4th, the comrades were enrolled as two-and-a-half Fire Soldiers.—J.

WAR CRY

Published for The Salvation Army in Canada, New foundland, Bermuda, and Alaska, by The War Cry Printing House, 19 Albert St., Toronto

Registration of Soldiers as Salvationists

Elsewhere we print a request that Field Officers should promptly communicate with our Chaplains at the military camps when Soldiers leave the home town for a training camp. This will enable Brigadier Phillips and others to get immediately into touch with them, and thus be in a position to help them to withstand the special temptations that beset a young man in camp life. We also urge upon our comrades who are about to enlist to be sure to register as Salvationists. Of the many thousands of our people who joined His Majesty's Forces since the commencement of the war, a great number have not been registered as such. This has come about largely because some officials of the recruiting staff have wrongly informed intending recruits that they could not be officially recognized as members of the Salvation Army, and some comrades, unaware of their rights in the matter, have not insisted on being entered as Salvationists.

This has worked not only to the disadvantage of the Organization, but also to the disadvantage of the men themselves; in that, owing to our inability to state, with any degree of accuracy, the number of Salvationists serving in various regiments, we have not been able to minister to them as would have been the case had matters been reversed. Further, in the case of the men, they have been obliged to attend places of worship other than their own.

It is with a view to righting this condition of affairs that we bring the following information to the notice of all enlisted Salvationists and other comrades who are affected by the new Military Act:

The King's Regulations for The Army guarantee:

1. The right of any soldier in enlistment in the Army as a Salvationist.
2. The right of every soldier to be properly attended to have the matter of his religious attention corrected.
3. The right of every soldier to attend Divine Service at his own place of worship.

There should be no difficulty in any Salvationist registering as such in the British Army, and it is hoped that our men will at once claim their rights and privileges in this direction.

If, however, difficulty is experienced in regard to the first registration or the rectification of a wrong religious attention, comrades should respectfully request the officials concerned, or their officers, to refer to the King's Regulations, paragraphs 919 and 1335, and also to the War Office letter No. 27 (Gen. No. 2514) (Chaplains), issued November 23rd, 1914.

Field Officers should be at great pains to impress upon soldiers and adherents that it is their duty as well as a privilege to register as Salvationists.

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS PERSONALIA

Successful Campaign Down East

KENTVILLE

THE last Corps in the Halifax Division to be visited was the Kentville Corps in charge of Captain Bramley and Lieutenant Sineklir. The meeting at night was held in the Pastimes Hall, and presided over by Major Pelton. His Worship, in introducing the Commissioner, stated that he was personally delighted with the honour bestowed upon him, as he felt there was no other Organization which deserved more praise than The Army, and it gave him pleasure to introduce the Commissioner to a Kentville audience.

The Commissioner then addressed the meeting, holding the rapt attention of everyone with his words of advice and counsel, his declaration of the truth he stands for, and the thrilling stories of The Army's work which he gave.

Mr. Newcome moved a vote of thanks to the Commissioner, speaking in eulogistic terms of the address, and the work of The Army in the town, and Mr. Blair seconded the same, which was carried by the audience rising to their feet.

Two miles from Kentville the military camp of Aldershot is situated, and from this a number of the band boys of the 193rd Battalion Old Bandmen of Eastern Canadian Corps were present, with their instruments, rendering suitable music before and during the service.

The Corps Officers are interested in the Young People, and strenuous efforts are being made along the line of forming Scout and Guard Troops, and getting together a substantial Young Corps of Corps.

DIGBY

This is a small town, with about 1,200 inhabitants, and it was an excellent crowd that filled the Bijou Theatre to welcome the Commissioner to the pretty little seaside town.

The chair was ably filled by the Deputy Mayor, O. S. Dunham, who assured the people that it was with very great pleasure he welcomed the Commissioner and his Staff on behalf of the town, and particularly a pleasure from a personal standpoint. He was sure that the Commissioner's address would help and inspire.

The wonderful stories of social and moral reform which the Commissioner told the appreciative audience proved the worth of The Salvation Army to the world, and the starting of the principles for which The Army stands showed that the first and foremost thought of The Army was to save the soul, as well as the body.

Magistrate B. Havey moved a vote of thanks to the Commissioner, and spoke in very eulogistic terms of the Army and the Commissioner, stating that he had learned much, and felt he owed much to The Army. As a result of the address, more determined than ever to pay back that which he owed in some small way.

This was seconded by G. R. Lettence, Esq., and unanimously carried by a loud "Aye" from the congregation.

Major Barr, on behalf of the Corps Officers (Captain Frison and Lieutenant Duncan) thanked the Deputy Mayor for his able work in connection with the meeting.

The Corps Officers are alive to the worth of the Young People, and have a splendid Junior Corps of 75 children.

In our own Citadel on Wednesday night at Yarmouth, a good crowd was present to welcome the Commissioner on his first visit to the town. The chair was taken by the Deputy Mayor, J. W. Grant, Esq., who is a warm friend of The Army.

"I feel," he said, "highly complimented at being asked to preside at this meeting. The Commissioner is a man of wide experience in Salvation Army Work, and it is with great pleasure that I introduce him to you."

The Commissioner then addressed the gathering, enlightening many present as to the great work The Army is doing by the help of God, and urging all to take full hold of the living religion which would make all ready to live and die.

W. Aikens, Esq., another warm friend of The Army, spoke a few words and moved a warm vote of thanks to be conveyed to the Commissioner, which was seconded by the Rev. W. Nicholls.

Brigadier Green solved, and then Major Barr, on behalf of the Corps Officers, Adjutant and Mrs. Barry and Captain Lyons and the local comrades, thanked the Chairman for his presence.

Returning to St. John by way of Digby, the Commissioner learned that as an outcome of his meeting, two Christian comrades had been led to attend the Soldiers' meeting on the night following the meeting at which the Commissioner spoke, and had made known their desire to become Soldiers.

ST. JOHN

Arriving at the wharf at St. John after a somewhat stormy passage, the Commissioner and those travelling with him, to see awaiting his arrival a splendid turn-out of Guards and Scouts in full uniform. Previous to the meeting the Commissioner paid a short visit to the Maternity Hospital.

The St. John No. 1 Hall has seen some wonderful victories and wonderful times of Salvation have been experienced, but none better than the Salvation meeting conducted by the Commissioner. From all over the city had come Soldiers and friends to listen to our Leader, and with a spontaneous hand-clapping, they greeted him as he stepped on to the platform.

Ensign Best, the acting Chancellor, prayed that the advent of the Commissioner to St. John should be productive of much good, and which the Scout Brass Band played a march. Great credit is due to those who have taught the boys, for the playing was excellent in fact, without doubt, was the best rendering of any Boys' Band that has been heard in the Eastern Territory for a very long time.

Brigadier Green gave a testimony to the joy of religion and to the satisfaction of all sobbed "You can tell out the sweet story," the chorus being taken up with great gusto by the members of the congregation.

Amid another expression of appreciation in the shape of hand-clapping the Commissioner arose to address the meeting. He thanked the comrades for the hearty welcome given, and expressed his delight in the fact that he was again in St. John.

To the delight, particularly of the Scouts and Guards, who were very numerous, the Commissioner then gave a few children. (Continued on Page 11)

INTERNATIONAL

The General has had a taxing week ending Monday, May 26th, as far as meetings are concerned. On Wednesday he conducted the Day of Devotion at the Westminster Central Hall; on the following evening, at the Clapton Congress Hall, he led the weekly Central Holmes meeting, while on Friday he conducted three sessions with the Cadets at the International Training College.

Mrs. Booth, who supported The General at the Central Hall gathering, also conducted in the Clapton Congress the commissioning of the women Cadets as Officers for service in this and other lands.

The British Commissioner is to visit Copenhagen and Christiania during the latter part of June to conduct the Annual Congress.

Commissioner McKie is, unfortunately, suffering from severe trouble. He was not able to keep his engagement at the Congress at Alver Valley, and is at the Commissioning of the Cadets.

Colonel and Mrs. Palmer have returned to Buenos Ayres, after conducting what Brigadier Desvrel, the Chief Secretary, describes as a remarkable series of fruitful meetings in Chile and Peru.

Lieut.-Colonel Pugnire is to conduct the wedding of Captain Lury Motgan (Trade Headquarters) and Captain William Clay (International Training College) at Leyton I. on June 17th.

Lieut.-Colonel Haines arrived in London during the week-end for conferences with the British Commissioner with reference to our work among the troops in France.

Brigadier-General McKie visited The Salvation Army's Hut at the other day before the troops left camp, and personally thanked Captain Climpson for the work which he and his staff had done for the men.

Brigadier Vias, who, with Mrs. Vias, returned recently to Holland after a considerable stay in England, mainly in the Manchester Division, has been publicly installed in Amsterdam as Divisional Commander and Principal of the Training College.

TERRITORIAL

CANADA WEST

Commissioner and Mrs. Sowton will conduct meetings at a number of Corps in the Saskatchewan Division during the month of July.

The Commissioner will visit Sewell Camp early in July. General Hughes (the Camp Commandant) has expressed in sympathy with The Army's work among the troops.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton will visit Fort Frances on July 18th, and will conduct the Sunday's meetings. Mrs. Commissioner Sowton and Mrs. Lieut.-Colonel Turner have returned from their special campaign in the Kootenies.

The Territorial Secretary will in all probability visit Alaska and the Yukon, in September.

Lieut.-Colonel Turner will visit Calgary in the near future, on the interest of the Men's and Women's Social Work.

Brigadier and Mrs. McLean, supported by Staff-Captain Smith, spent a very profitable week-end at Vancouver I. recently.

SELF-DENIAL, 1916

Letter of Thanks From
COMMISSIONER SOWTON

MY DEAR COMRADES AND FRIENDS—

I wish I could thank personally all who have contributed to this year's Self-Denial victory, but that is clearly impossible, so I must convey my thanks through the medium of "The War Cry," which helped so splendidly by the enthusiasm it has aroused. Our total for the Western Territory will be close on $14,000, or $2,000 more than the West raised last year.

Every Division, and in some Divisions, every Corps, has gone over its target, and, as noted elsewhere in "The Cry," these included several B. E. Corps. I know this result has not been achieved without lots of hard work, and especially has this been the case with our small Corps working in the sparsely settled and scattered districts, and in those parts of the West which have been most hardy hit by the unfavourable trade conditions and heavy enlistments. Yet, in spite of every adverse circumstance, we have triumphed and will do better still in years to come. Our Young People deserve a special word of commendation, for in many Corps their extra effort has meant the difference between success and failure. May God abundantly bless them.

And now, my comrades, full steam ahead for our Summer Campaign, with its boundless opportunities for open-air work. In street and park, in town and country, lift high the Banner of Salvation, full present and free. Yours to Help,

CHAS. SOWTON, Commissioner.

PRESIDES AT WEDDING SERVICE IN TORONTO TEMPLE.

Colonel Jacobs Performs Ceremony

The Toronto Temple was crowded on the night of Monday, June 12th, to witness the wedding ceremony of Brother E. Green and Captain Edith Jacobs. The Chief Secretary presided over the gathering, and the knot was tied by the bride's father—Colonel Jacobs. The Staff Songsters, of which the Captain was a member, rendered the music and singing in connection with the event.

Mrs. Commissioner Richards having asked God's blessing on the service, Lieut.-Colonel Smeeton then read a portion of Scripture.

Short speeches were given by Staff-Captain Easton, Adjutant Cornish, Brigadier Morris, and Colonel Gaskin, each of whom paid a tribute to the bride and bridegroom and wished them happiness and blessing.

We compliment the speakers on their efforts; they were brief to the point and in excellent taste.

Colonel Jacobs then read the Articles of Marriage and performed the ceremony which united the young couple in matrimony. He did it with a tender dignity that was very touching.

Messages were then read from many friends and well-wishers, including telegrams from Commissioner Richards and Commanders Evans, Smith, and from friends in the Old Country.

Captain Bert Greenaway, the best man, then spoke briefly and well, following which Colonel Jacobs made a gentle reference to the loss of Brother Green had sustained two years ago, when his father, mother, and sister were lost in the "Empress" disaster. "In coming into our family," said the Colonel, "he has found another father and mother, and I and Mrs. Jacobs will endeavour to be to him all that parents should be."

The bride and bridegroom each had a few words, extolling the "Edith" for all the kind things said of them and the goodwill and interest manifested by so many friends and the service came to a close with the pronouncing of the benediction by Colonel Gaskin. We wish them all happiness and blessing.

SWEEPING ON TO VICTORY Some More Successful Drives Against Sin and the Devil

HIGHEST EVER

Comrades Rejoice Over the Victory

Self-Denial at St. John I. is now a thing of the past, and the comrades and Officers are rejoicing over victory. Monday, June 24th, a great gathering service was held in No. 1, Citadel, presided over by Major Barr (our Divisional Commander), when the results from each Corps in the Division were shown on canvas by the aid of a lantern.

This Corps raised the sum of $530, an increase of $10 over last year's amount. Every Soldier did splendidly, not only in their collecting, but in their giving of personal donations, and the real spirit of Self-Denial prevailed throughout the effort.

The Young People's Workers, together with the Young People and Scouts and Guards, raised the sum of $229.16. The Band, though only small, raised $50.

The highest collector among the Soldiers was Sister Adie McDermott, who collected $66. The Local Officer who collected the most was "War Cry" Sergeant Mrs. Butt, $13, and the highest Young People's collector was Sergeant Mrs. Mappleback, $15.—W. G.

TRAINING COLL. PRINCIPAL

Conducts Some Profitable Meetings

Dundas comrades turned out in splendid numbers on Saturday, June 23rd, to welcome Brigadier and Mrs. Bell from Toronto. A record crowd stood around the open-air, listening attentively to the Brigadier's earnest words.

The services on Sunday were full of interest and help, the comrades deriving much spiritual help from the visitors' addresses. Three children and two adults knelt at the Mercy Seat in the night meeting.

The Sunday School Workers and Young People were encouraged by a visit from Mrs. Bell.—D. S.

FAREWELL AND WELCOME

The Flag is still flying at Dartmouth. We have said good-bye to Captain Murray and Lieutenant Ellis, and on Sunday, May 28th, welcomed Captain Bellamy and Lieutenant Hicking. Every moment of the day's meetings was full of interest, and although we saw no visible results, the Presence of God was very near. Captain Sibbick and Lieutenant Potts assisted at night, also the Deputy Sergeant Leader of Halifax I. rendered good service. Our Self-Denial target was badly smashed.—O. S.

YOUNG PEOPLE

Do Exploits for Self-Denial Effort

The Altar Service at Strathroy was a decided success, when the comrades placed $160 on the Altar. Ninety-seven dollars of this money was given by the Young People. The Corps' target was smashed. Great blessing is attending the efforts of Ensign and Mrs. Smith.—E.

LECTURE ON INDIA

Interests Large Crowd in Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton, assisted by Mrs. Lieut.-Colonel Turner, visited Coleman on May 29th, and conducted a very special meeting. They were met at the station by the Officers and Mrs. Guinette, who entertained them during their stay. Mr. Blair, a great friend of the Salvation Army, placed his auto at the disposal of the visitors, which was appreciated.

At night the Presbyterian Church, which was kindly loaned for the occasion, was nicely filled to hear Mrs. Sowton's lecture. Rev. Mr. Allen, Pastor of the Church, presided over the gathering, and spoke in glowing words regarding the Salvation Army's Work.

Mrs. Commissioner Sowton gave a special address, and for over an hour the audience listened to the charms of India and the devotion of our Officers in that land.

The Church Choir rendered several good selections during the evening.

A GOOD WEEK-END

Lecture Draws a Large Crowd

On June 23rd-24th at Sault Ste. Marie we had Brigadier and Mrs. Adby to conduct special meetings. The Divisional Commander's singing and speaking was enjoyed by both young and old and caused large crowds to gather around to the open-air.

On Sunday night Mrs. Adby spoke on the necessity of the Blood being applied to each heart.

A good crowd gathered on Monday to hear the Brigadier's famous lecture, "Hymns That Have Helped and Their Origin." It was a grand affair.

Our Self-Denial target of $300 has been smashed; $400 being sent Divisional Headquarters.—C. C.

MAJOR HAY

And Staff-Captain Peacock Lead Meetings.

On May 27th-28th, at Red Deer, we had Major Hay and Staff-Captain Peacock to conduct special meetings. Owing to local conditions the crowds were rather small, but those who attended the services were blessed. The Major gave some interesting experiences of his Army career and the Staff-Captain spoke on the Young People's Work.

On Monday night a special tea was arranged for the Young People, and after a most interesting talk from the Young People's Secretary, six children gave their hearts to God.—A. P.

TEMPLE (TORONTO)

Mrs. Ensign Jaynes of the United States, conducted the night meeting at the Temple on Sunday, June 11th. Her subject was: "What shall I profit a man by selling out too cheap?" One soul sought Salvation. The meetings during the day were conducted by Adjutant and Mrs. H. Ritchie.

HOME COOKING SALE

How the Young People of Ottawa I. Helped the Self-Denial Effort.

Adjutant MacDonald is delighted with the way the Young People's Workers and the Young People themselves took hold of the Self-Denial Effort. From the first time it was brought before them, until the grand total of $500 was reached, they never faltered either in faith, enthusiasm, or hard work.

The Life-Saving Guards had a sale one Saturday in a vacant store, and loaned them of home cooking. They also did special open-air and collected both in Ottawa, and with the Life-Saving Scouts in Aylmer.

Adjutant MacDonald went to the managers of four theatres and asked them to allow the Guards to stand at the entrances and collect from the patrons of the theatres as they passed out, and also asked them to throw an announcement to that effect on the screen just before closing. The managers very courteously agreed to this, and the Guards received substantial help as the theatre-goers passed out.

Scout Harry Sussans took his collecting box on Empire Day and went up among the crowds on Parliament Hill where the Duke of Connaught was inspecting troops. He brought in a total of $10.50. Sister Nellie Howard, of the Senior Bible Class, and Company Guard Sadie Smith did the bars, and brought in $17 and $12.50 respectively.

Life-Saving Guard L. Mason did $15.32; Guard Joy Mason, $11.12; Assistant Leader Mrs. Sawyer $16.41; Patrol Leaders Chapman and May, $26.25 and $9.77 respectively. The Young People's Sergeant-Major Mrs. Davey, Guard Leader Mrs. Nicholson, and Scout Leader Mason all worked like Trojans. We thank God, and go forward.—Anon.

A B. E. CORPS

The Work of God Is Advancing

We are still fighting on at Collingwood, and having some real spiritual times. The Self-Denial target was smashed, and through the blessing of God and hard work we have become one of the B. E. Corps. Our Officers led us to victory, and we all went to work in the right spirit, and God rewarded our efforts.

Our Altar Service was held at the night meeting, and was an impressive service, not only was the money put on the Altar, but one precious soul fully surrendered her life to God. We believe that a real good work is being done, and Heaven rejoices.—Secretary.

ELEVEN SURRENDER

We are having some blessed times at Montreal I.L. with Adjutant O'Neill in charge. On Sunday, June 4th, we had some splendid meetings, when the devil was obliged to stay in the background. At night six adults and five children knelt at the Mercy Seat. This is only a foretaste of the things that are in store for us.—M. T.

DIVISIONAL INGATHERING

Causes Much Excitement and Gratitude.

On Monday, May 26th, the Halifax Divisional Self-Denial Ingathering was held at St. Paul's Hall. It was unusually great crowd was present. The following were present: Major Cribb, the Divisional Commander, conducted the service in grand style. Adjutant Smith the renowned soloist, sang in his inimitable style. The Sergeant had appeared in informal uniform, but the officers were present. A first-aid drill proved very attractive.

Major Cribb, the Divisional Commander, conducted the service in grand style. Adjutant Smith the renowned soloist, sang in his inimitable style. The Sergeant had appeared in informal uniform, but the officers were present. A first-aid drill proved very attractive.

On Tuesday evening a special gift was made to Sergeant Dec, in recognition of services rendered to the Band—a wrist watch, with neatly engraved initials, being given our comrades. The officers and men of the 12th Battalion being the principal donors of this memento. Our prayers will be with our fighting comrades, as they certainly will be very much missed.

CORPS IS HEALTHY

Good Meetings—Officers Reed

We are having some good times at Rossland, B.C. On May 13th farwell meeting was held by Captains Nelson and Douglas, who have laboured together here for last eight months, and quite a big crowd was present.

On Sunday, May 28th, we collected $85. The officers and men of the 12th Battalion being the principal donors of this memento. Our prayers will be with our fighting comrades, as they certainly will be very much missed.

Our Self-Denial Effort has been a great success, and we can report our target smashed.—A. Saunders.

AN INTERESTING WEEK

Khaki Boys Farewell—Record Collection.

We have had several interesting events take place at Moose Jaw during the past week. On Wednesday evening we met together for a splendid repast, prepared for our comrades who were leaving for Camp Hughes. They, with their wives, and the wives of those who have already gone from us, and the members of the Census Board and Officers in charge, sat down to tables loaded with good things.

The following comrades in their khaki uniforms graced the tables: Band Sergeant J. Dec, Bandmen H. Goodwin, J. Heslop, J. Smith, D. Wilson, J. Cruickshank, beside two converts. The following were unable to be present with us: Sergeant McGee, Bandman Parkes, and Brothers P. Delmont and S. Scott.

After supper an interesting meeting was held, and each comrade was presented with a small leather-bound Testament by Staff-Captain Goodwin. The gathering closed with the National Anthem.

On Tuesday evening a special gift was made to Sergeant Dec, in recognition of services rendered to the Band—a wrist watch, with neatly engraved initials, being given our comrades. The officers and men of the 12th Battalion being the principal donors of this memento.

Sunday, June 4th, was a notable day with us. We had good crowds at each meeting, and at night we rejoiced in the capture of two precious souls, both volunteers. Our night open-air was quite a record in the collection—this offering amounting to about $55. The officers and men of the 12th Battalion being the principal donors of this memento.

NEWCASTLE

The next Corps visited was Newcastle where a good meeting was held in the St. James' Hall, and was presided over by Mayor Fish, who stated that it was a pleasure to preside at a meeting of the B. E. Corps, and he was sure that a great work would be done. The Commissioner was a man of great ability and only did a few minutes of good to the outcast, but to the Church, by pointing out the way by which mankind can be uplifted. I have, therefore, much pleasure in moving a hearty vote of thanks to the Commissioner for his very able, inspiring and instructive address.

The motion was seconded by Rev. Hugh Miller (Presbyterian), and carried unanimously by the vast throng of people who were present, demonstrating their appreciation by more vigorous hand-clapping.

NEW ADDITIONS

Work of God Progressing Well

We are steadily marching on at New Glasgow, and God is blessing our efforts.

On Sunday night, June 11th, we enrolled two recruits as Soldiers, and we have also been reinforced by a number of transfers from different parts of the Division; among them being Bro. Thonless of Halifax, Bro. Yorston from Summerside, Mrs. Thomas Scott from North Sydney, Bro. and Sis. Ross from Pictou. These comrades will make quite an addition to our fighting force, and with one united effort we are determined by the Grace of God to push the old chariot along. Hallelujah!—W. B.

SUCCESS ATTENDING

United Efforts—Promoting conversions.

Our work at Tillsonburg is making steady progress. Within the last two months we have had the joy of seeing ten precious souls brought to God, and we are hoping soon to cure them as Blood-and-Fire Soldiers.

We rejoice to say we have added our target of $150. We are going for victory!—Interested.

THIRTY OPEN-AIR MEETINGS

God has blessed us at Toronto during the Self-Denial Effort. Adjutant Gallon collected $20. Adjutant J. Ritchie, with the comrades, conducted thirty open-air meetings during the Self-Denial Week. Last Sunday's meetings were interesting and full of blessing. We have a small band of five persons who help considerably in the meetings.—R. W.

TRADE ANNOUNCEMENT

Trade Secretary announces that the Store is now open on Saturdays until 5 p.m., so that Soldiers and friends may have an opportunity of inspecting the stock and purchasing anything they may require. Various lines of goods will be placed on sale at reduced prices every Friday and Saturday.

particulars of the work which is being accomplished by these two units. For his last talk, 2 Peter 3:5. "Powerfully he spoke on repentance." "God sees right into the innermost heart," spoke the Commissioner, "but He is long-suffering, and if we repent, He will forgive." With all the earnestness of which he is capable the Commissioner urged the unconverted and the backslider to repent, and when the invitation was given twelve precious souls came forward.

The Benediction was pronounced, "I suppose it is not too late to be good," said His Worship. In very warm and appreciative words he spoke of the Army, further stating: "Such Organizations must have good men at the head, and such a man have we here with us to-day. He has risen from the ranks to his present position, and on behalf of the people of Campbellton, I extend to Commissioner Richards a very hearty welcome to our town."

Amid a tremendous welcome in the shape of vigorous hand-clapping, the Commissioner arose to address the meeting. To the great delight of the audience, judging by their frequent interruptions for the purpose of applauding, he gave much information as to the work of the Army in connection with the present world-war, and the manner in which Salvationists were responding to assist in the Empire's struggle, as well as the incidents in connection with the Social Operations of the Army. A profound impression was also made on the people by his declaration of the truths and fundamental principles which the Army and himself stood for.

In moving a vote of thanks to the Commissioner, Judge McLatchy stated that it had been his very great pleasure to preside at a meeting to what had proved to be a very interesting address. "I believe," noted the Judge, "that the Army has not only done a great amount of good to the outcast, but to the Church, by pointing out the way by which mankind can be uplifted. I have, therefore, much pleasure in moving a hearty vote of thanks to the Commissioner for his very able, inspiring and instructive address."

The motion was seconded by Rev. Hugh Miller (Presbyterian), and carried unanimously by the vast throng of people who were present, demonstrating their appreciation by more vigorous hand-clapping.

CAMPBELLTON

The last week-end of the tour was spent at Campbellton, a pretty little town on the Restigouche River. Saturday night a meeting was conducted in our own Hall for Soldiers and friends, and on behalf of the local Corps Mrs. Captain Squarebriggs and Sergeant-Major Trica welcomed the Commissioner. The Sergeant-Major stated that the Commissioner's visit had long been looked to as a thing which would rest the Spirit of the Holy Ghost, and it had been to that end that the comrades had been praying.

Brigadier Green, soloed, after which the Commissioner gave a powerful address on "Salvation." Vividly he portrayed God as a God of justice, and yet as a God of infinite love and long suffering, and deeply he urged those present to accept to the fullest extent His wonderful power to save, and to keep moved the audiences during the day with his enthusiasm.—J. R.

TRADE ANNOUNCEMENT

Trade Secretary announces that the Store is now open on Saturdays until 5 p.m., so that Soldiers and friends may have an opportunity of inspecting the stock and purchasing anything they may require. Various lines of goods will be placed on sale at reduced prices every Friday and Saturday.

The Commissioner was assisted in his campaign by Brigadier Moore and Green, Major Barr (the Divisional Commander), and Captain and Mrs. Squarebriggs (the Corps Officers).

SOLDIERS IN KHAKE

Visit Home Corps—Conduct Bright Meetings.

For several weeks the St. Mary's Corps has been looking forward to a visit from a number of our comrades who have donned the khaki, and on June 11th a fine visit was paid by Bandmaster Wood, accompanied by his two sons, Bandmaster Hart and John Wood, also Bandmaster Charles Wood, of London.

Our comrades took an active part in all the services, and their music and singing was much appreciated by everyone. It was encouraging to hear of the brave stand they are taking for Christ in the camp, and also proving themselves to be true Salvation Army Soldiers. Their testimony was, "Christ is able to keep in the camp, as well as anywhere else." May God bless our comrades, and make them a blessing wherever they are or may go.

We have been cheered and encouraged by their visit, and we trust this will not be the last. One soul surrendered on Sunday.—A. K.

der to be on a par with Toronto, should raise at least $3,600.

We fancy after this that Brigadier Taylor will say, "Comparisons are odorous." At any rate, the Brigadier has a fine chance to distinguish himself as Winnipeg for some time past has not been "delivering the goods" proportionate with other cities in connection with special efforts. We shall watch with interest the progress of the Gateway of the West.

The Toronto Divisional Commander has received the following: "Dear Brigadier Adby: I am notified by 'The War Cry' of June 17th that we are missed out as a B. E. Corps. We raised $100 over the target, whilst others who are not rated as much over are in at B. E. Corps. Will you kindly see about this. Yours sincerely—Wm. Curry, Captain (Sault Ste. Marie)."

[In order to win the B. E. distinction it is necessary that a thirty-seven per cent. increase be made on last year. Captain Curry did well, but his increase was twenty-five per cent. We are very sorry Sault Ste. Marie is not eligible for the B. E. Perhaps next year may make it such.—Ed.]

ATTENTION!

The Immigration Department of The Salvation Army would remind "War Cry" readers and friends that its facilities are at their disposal and parties intending to travel to and from the United States and Canada are advised to consult on all matters pertaining to the transportation of friends, either east or west bound. We give special attention to parties travelling under our auspices, meeting them at port of landing and en route, if necessary.

CHAPTER XXVII

THE TEMPERANCE MISSION

JUST before my release from prison another chaplain came to visit me in my cell. He was of quite a different type from the first one, but he also completely failed to make any good impression on me.

He was a nervous, fussy little chap, with spectacles and side whiskers. There was none of the haughty cleric about him, nor the high-pitched, aristocratic voice—he was probably the assistant to the other chaplain, and in a state of humble subservience to him.

"My dear young man," he began, as he entered my cell. "I understand you are here for causing a riot at a workhouse. You should learn to control your violent temper better. You really should, or you will get into more serious trouble, and perhaps end up on the gallows."

"Dreadful," I said, in a mock tone of solemnity.

He gazed at me severely through his glasses and gave a sigh. "Ah! how I wish I could get you to realize it," he continued. "But now, I wish to help you. In a day or two you will be leaving here. What are you going to do? Have you friends to go to?"

I shook my head.

"Well, then, perhaps I can help you. Suppose we rent a room for you for a fortnight while you look around for employment."

"No, I don't want any of your State charity," I said, "of course, after myself all right, thank you."

Whereupon the Reverend gentleman looked very much aggrieved, and withdrew, muttering to himself, "An poor boy! poor boy! that temper of yours will spoil your life."

My personal opinion was, however, that he got things a bit mixed. He did not recognize the fact that a lad of independent spirit is not necessarily bad-tempered. I am really a very even-tempered chap, and my ways have been, but at the same time injustice or insult have always roused me.

At last the day came when I was to be released from prison. I felt blithe and gay that morning—in a few hours I would be without those dreary walls and once more enjoying my liberty. What fresh adventures awaited me in the busy outside world? One thing I was firmly resolved on—whatever happened, I would make a desperate fight for freedom before they dragged me back to endure prison life again.

One month of oakum picking, crank-turning, and constant bullying by warders had thoroughly sickened me of prison, though I cannot say that it had had any salutary effect upon my character. I hated the punishment, but I was still unrepentant, and fear of enduring it again would not deter me from committing any evil on which my heart was set.

I ate my last prison breakfast with a sense of keen anticipation, probably the very thought it was indeed my last in that gloomy cell made me light-hearted and imaginative; anyhow, the miserable dainties seemed to me like the most delicious cream of wheat, and the dry bread I imagined was buttered toast and eggs.

I even lingered over the last crust, chewing every bite with great deliberation and exclaiming, "Ah! how tasty!" or "That was delicious!" When I came to think of it, however, I must confess that a real genuine hunger added greatly to the

Being the Experience of a one-time Hobo, who sought Adventure and Fortune. He found both, but not the kind he thought charm of all food I received during my month's incarceration.

Soon after breakfast I was called out of my cell by a warder, and marched, with several others who were to be discharged, to the place where I had been received on entering the prison. Once more I had to take a cold bath, and then they gave me my own clothes and made me get dressed quickly. I obeyed no command from a prison warder more gladly than that one. We were then marched to the prison gate and let out one by one. As I was about to step outside into blessed liberty, a warder grasped my arm.

"The Chief Warden wants to see you," he said. I think I must have turned pale, for the warder laughed poor, pale-faced wife sobbing on the shoulder of a burly labourer; an old couple giving a welcome to a somewhat shame-faced, loutish lad; a sister came to meet a brother and persuaded him to return home. Most touching of all, however, was a refined-looking woman, holding a little girl in her hand. The woman looked sad and anxious, the girl a little bit frightened.

"Oh, there's daddy!" I heard her exclaim, at a tall, gentlemanly-looking fellow emerged, dressed in the customary garb of a city clerk.

He advanced towards the pair with a quick step, and the woman greeted him with a kiss. The girl, however, fairly flew into his arms, kissing him again and again, and I

"I was rewarded with a handshake from him and a smile from his daughter" and said, "Oh, there's nothing wrong, he only wants to give you a present." I was wonderfully lulled by him into the warden's office.

"The chaplain has recommended that you be given a gratuity of two shillings," said the warden. "Here you are" (handing me the money). "Now take care of yourself, my lad, and don't come back here again."

"Not if I know it," I said, as I pocketed the money and made tracks for the door.

It did not occur to me at the moment that I had proudly boasted to the chaplain that I would never be a State charity. All I thought of was the grim fact that I was going into London's streets penniless, and that two shillings would at least buy me a night's lodging and a few meals.

Afterwards I felt very grateful to that chaplain that I would never be a State charity. All I thought of was the grim fact that I was going into London's streets penniless, and that two shillings would at least buy me a night's lodging and a few meals.

"Outside the prison gate I found much going on. Some pathetic sights I witnessed. There was a man who had accepted that offer's invitation. I soon came to see that he had spoken the truth. I had suspected it was a trap, but I was in no mood for preaching at, after enduring the son of a bitch's sermon for a while, but I thought I might as well enjoy a good breakfast at some else's expense, even if I did have to listen to some talk about my sins.

So I went and sat down at one of the tables. A mug of hot tea and a buttered roll was brought me by a dainty young woman, whose face radiated happiness. She reminded me somewhat of the Salvation Army lassie whom I had defended from Red Tim in Buffalo.

There was the same look on her face, the same impression of personal consecration to a high ideal. I found myself vaguely wondering what was the secret of it all. What power was it that made that beautiful young woman like this choose to perform hard and disagreeable tasks, constantly to mingle with the outcasts of society for the purpose of doing them good.

My sisters at home were good girls in the way, but they were not like this. I could not imagine either of them selling "War Crys" in saloons or serving cups of coffee in discharged prisoners. What was the difference? I supposed it was a matter of what one was brought up to believe, yet that explanation hardly satisfied me, for I reflected that Christian people the world over learned the "true truths" of some Bible, well, then it was a matter of the interpretation of those truths according to one's disposition. I concluded. And I let rest at that for the time being.

Since my own conversion, of course, the mystery has been solved, and I know that the difference between the nominal Christian and the one who is a real follower of Christ is this—that the first has only an outward form of religion, hiding a heart which is really selfish.

The second has been transformed by the power of the Holy Spirit, and is impelled to seek the lost by the promptings of a renewed heart which is in communion with the Lord.

To resume the story, however. After we had eaten and drunk as much as we needed, some taking three and even four cups of coffee and a dozen rolls, we were taken to a hall in a short service. Rolls were handed round, and we sang a song about the joys of Temperance. Then the man who had invited us to give a drink, he evidently thought we were all kinds of a feather, and that all our misfortune was entirely due to his temptations for the cup which intoxicates.

It was probably true of some, but I felt he had gone far. We were told by a man in a particular way. The meeting ended up with an invitation for us to sign the pledge—or "get on the water wagon," as we say in the States.

Out of consideration for my host's feelings, I duly signed up, and was rewarded, with a gracious smile of approval from his charming daughter. I would have signed a hundred pledges for a smile like that.

It was that night that he reported as the most successful meeting, for over forty walked forward to sign the pledge. That was wonderful to me, for I had seen London once more a place where black no answer across food to all your anxious association of green fields, running brooks, smiling flowers, fragrant trees, sylvan groves, shady lanes, sunlit pastures, or towering mountains.

Heaven is a place, a prepared place, a place planned by the Architect of the universe, the Creator of the earth and the planets in their course; a place to which the tools of the sublime Artist have been given, where the perfection of all beauty meets, and which the glory of the highest types and symbols of earthly magnificence are utterly inadequate to describe. John tried to tell of its wonders when he spoke of streets of gold and gates of pearl, illuminated not by the sun, which gives his wondrous light to brighten and radiate the earth, but by One whose presence sheds a brilliancy beyond the pea of John the Divine to portray.

We know not the location of this Heaven. We might conjecture by the epithet "well"—like thinnest and frailest and most delicate of partitions—that Heaven is near.

We cannot tell of its climate or its seasons; its boundaries have never been measured by human mathematicians, its trees have never been classified by human botanists, its dimensions and capacity have never been gauged by human speculation. It is a place of "many mansions," but what these mansions are, or how the heavenly family is to be seated in those palaces of light, no sinner has ever been able to explain.

No human pen can paint a word picture of that realm, and if one were to attempt it, how imperfect the idea conveyed through a mere statement! How little one can imagine a Niagara or a Rocky Mountain range from a verbal or written description! If we feel the record we have of Heaven in the Bible is meagre, may it not be that the language of earth could not adequately express the glory of it, or if earthly words had been adequate to describe it, our finite minds might not have grasped its glory or intensely as sign as to its nature, or how black no answer across food to all your anxious

COLORED OF BATTALION

Appreciates Work of The Army—Khaki Boys Take Active Part

On June 4th at Kingston we welcomed quite a lot of Salvationists, who have come to the military camp here. There are about seventy-five Bandmen, besides Soldiers and Locals from the different cities and towns. We have made the comrades feel quite at home with us. The open-air meetings are times of great inspiration, and hundreds of good men stand around eager to drink in the Gospel messages given by men who are up against the same difficulties as they are.

Last Sunday, after supper, we had a lovely prayer meeting with the boys. It was a real spiritual feast to our souls; the heart-felt praise that went up to the Throne of Grace for the loved ones at home, for the Salvation of the boys, for the boys on the battlefields, and for their home Corps. It was a hallowed time. We shall leave no stone unturned to be a help and blessing to the boys.

A LONE GIRL'S DARING

What Faithfulness Did

The following touching story was related by the Commander at the recent Commissioning of Cadets in New York:

"Faithfulness was enforced by a story of a girl officer in a small far Western city, bearing her flag and upholding its traditions. Alone she marched carrying her standard down the almost empty streets, singing as she went. At the cross roads she stopped and alone sang a song, while, protected in the shadow of a building, there stood a great man and a famous woman. They watched, and, seeing her kneel, the man was moved to tears and suggested another movement towards the praying girl.

"Upon opening her eyes she found a congregation of two fashionably-dressed people standing in front of her, and she preached unto them Jesus and gave her simple testimony. This done, with grace and dignity she lifted her flag and began the return march alone to her hall. 'Oh, let us help her,' said the man, and each fell in behind her and marched to the hall.

"That world-famous lady was in my office to-day," said the Commander, "and she testified that the blessing imparted by that lone girl daring in the dignity of love for souls, to stand alone for God."

NOT A CRIMINAL

Don't judge the black and white warbler by its color. You might imagine from the black and white stripes it wears (says the Philadelphia North American) that it recently escaped from a State prison. But it's no criminal; it's a hunter of criminals. It pursues the harmful moths and beetles, which damage forest and fruit trees. It captures them and sentences them to die for their misdeeds—and far its appetite.

ARMY SONGS

O JESUS, KEEP ME HOLY
Tune.—Come on, my partners, 137;
He lives, 138; S. B., 389.
O Jesus, Saviour, Christ Divine,
When shall I know and feel Thee
mine
Without a doubt or fear?
With anxious, longing thirst I come
To beg Thee make my heart Thy home,
And keep me holy here.

What is there that I will not give
To have Thee ever with me live—
A conquering Christ within?
My life, my all, this blessed day,
Down at Thy precious feet I lay;
To be redeemed from sin.

I can, I do just now believe,
To do the heavenly grace receive,
The Spirit makes me clean;
Christ takes the whole of my poor heart.

No chains shall ever from me part
My Lord, who reigns supreme.

BEFORE THINE ALTAR

Tunes.—No. 437.
See, Lord, before Thine altar bowed,
Prostrate my humble soul,
Till from above Thy mercy cloud
Thy voice shall speak us whole.

Oh, for the halloving Flame!
Oh, for descending Fire!
Come, Holy Ghost, my heart's desire.
I plead in Jesus' name.

A willing sacrifice at last
Myself to Thee I give;
The weary, painful strife is past—
I die that I may live.

I yield Thee all my hallowed
powers,
Thine only will I be,
Contented, if I may but know
Thou giv'st Thyself to me.

PRAISE THE LORD!

Tunes.—And above the rest, 1; Dear
Jesus is the One, 3; S. B., 332.
Praise God for what He's done for me!
Once I was blind, but now I see;
I on the brink of ruin fell—
Glory to God, I'm out of hell!

For what the Lord has done for me,
I'll praise Him through eternity!

The Lord has pardoned all my sin,
And now to praise Him I'll begin;
I never praised the Lord before,
But now I'll praise Him more and more.

Praise God for what He's done for us!
He's turned our hearts to praise Him
thus;
And now He cries, "Go on, go on;
I'll crown you when your work is done."

OH, IT'S GRAND TO BE SAVED

Tune.—My heart is so full,
Oh, it's grand to be saved, to be saved, to be saved!
Oh, it's grand to be saved!
To know your sins are all forgiven,
To know you are fighting for Jesus and Heaven;
It's grand to be saved, to be saved,
to be saved!

Oh, it's grand to be cleansed!
To plunge in a fountain that
cleanseth from sin,
To know you have Jesus residing within;
It's grand to be cleansed.

Oh, it's grand to be filled!
To be filled with the power of the Holy Ghost;
It's grand to be saved to the utter-most;
It's grand to be filled!
Oh, it's grand to be kept!
When Satan to tempt you is doing his best,
You are trusting Jesus, and He does
the rest;
It's grand to be kept.
—Albert Madden, Brigadier.

SCENES OF CHILDHOOD

Tune.—Home, sweet home.
Dear scenes of my childhood, sweet visions of home,
Come oft stealing o'er me wherever
I roam;
And forms of the loved ones in fancy
I see,
'Tis then, dearest mother, my heart
yearns for thee.

Home, home, Heaven's sweet home;
Dear Lord, bring us all to Thy Heavenly Home.

Oh! how much I owe to thy unceasing care,
The humble devotion, the oft-
whispered prayer;
Thy deep mother-passion, thine infinite love,
Foresadow to me the dear Home
above.

"Thy works shall all praise thee,"
thou dear mother mine;
Thy deeds wrought for others forever shall shine;
Thy lessons of truth to thy children shall be
A chart, as a compass o'er life's troubled sea.

Dear Lord, help us cherish this best,
precious thing,
This love of the "Mother of men,"
let us sing.
Revere the blessed memories of those
gone before,
Let follow their footsteps to the Heavenly Shore.
—Composed by Bandmaster W.
Shepherd, St. John I.

SETTLEMENT EMIGRANTS

In Celebes—Schools Being Built for Children—Lieut-Colonel De
Groot Holds Meetings
With Leaders.

Salvation Army effort in the distant and difficult Missionary field of the Dutch East Indies has been wonderfully increased during recent years, with the result that not only has the work spread throughout the whole of Java, which is the principal island of the group, but The Army Flag has been planted, with truly remarkable success, in the new island of Sumatra and Celebes. From time to time we have published reports of the conversion of sinners, of the establishment of Corps and Schools, and of the erection of buildings for the carrying on of Field and Social operations.

To this record of glorious achievement has now to be added the formation in Celebes of a Salvation Army Settlement for Javanese emigrants, many of whom leave their native land to seek fortune in this new country. They do not all succeed, and not a small number find themselves in difficult circumstances, and in many instances, without means of support.

In order to meet what has become a pressing need in this direction, The Salvation Army acquired a fine stretch of good land, pegged it out into small holdings, erected houses, settled a number of families, and initiated a course of instruction for them in matters of agriculture and cattle rearing.

The venture is proving a great success, for the colonists are keenly alive to the opportunities which have been presented to them; and there is every prospect of their being well circumstanced within a comparatively short period. Major Richards, General Secretary for the Dutch Indies Territory, has just returned to Java from a tour of inspection in Celebes, and he reports that "very appreciable advance is being made; new buildings are being erected and plans for many other additions are being considered."

The spirit of the colonists, who are bent on making good, is excellent; not only are they happy by their work, but many of them are embracing Christianity and are becoming Salvation Soldiers. Schools for native children are being built. The call for more Officers is still insistent. For instance, from a number of Communities in the Sebedi district urgent requests have been received that The Salvation Army should send Officers to instruct the people in the teachings of Christ, as they are anxious to be free from Mohammedanism. Then, too, it is desired to Christianize many districts as yet untouched by Mohammedanism, or, for that matter, by teaching of any kind. Here, again, progress is impeded, owing to the death of labourers.

Lieut-Colonel de Groot (Territorial Commander) recently visited The Army's Leger Settlement at Medan, and led meetings with 300 patients. These meetings were conducted in three languages: Dutch, Malay, and Chinese. It is interesting to know that the chief interpreter at the Settlement, who is a Chinaman holding the rank of Sergeant, has made application to become an Officer.

Several new buildings have recently been added to the Colony, which is continually extending its borders and increasing its sphere of useful service on behalf of the stricken people for whom it exists.
